BIO

Camilo started his journey at an early age in a music conservatory in Colombia where he learned how to play piano, guitar, and drums. Influenced by the musicians and creatives around him, submerged into the local music scene. After finishing college he started to find new ways to implement his production and engineering skills on audio for short films, advertisements and documentaries. Camilo later moved to Los Angeles in 2017 and began working as a sound mixer and audio engineer.

During this period, he had the opportunity to collaborate with many artists and work in different studios in Hollywood. In 2019 he opened an independent studio in Downtown Los Angeles where he began producing his album "Elements" released on 2020. While simultaneously producing music for artists, Camilo created a performance style that includes synthesizers and live instruments. His productions blend styles that go from House to sweet and indie mellow vibes inspired by analog synths and dreamy 80s music.
